

Shampooodle's Doggie Day Camp

If your pet is socialized, and well mannered, drop them off with us for a day of romping around and making new friends. Your pup will be lovingly taken care of by our attentive staff while you're at work, play, or out shopping.

Q: How can I tell if my dog would like doggie day camp? A: Look at his personality. Does your dog enjoy the company of other dogs? Does your dog like to be around other dogs? Does your dog play with other dogs, and how well does your dog play with other dogs? Not all dogs are suitable for doggie day camp. It's a lot of activity and they should be able to enjoy it. Also, some of the lower key dogs like to "hang out" with other dogs – they also love day camp.

Q: Should the dogs be separated by size? A: It's not just size, because small dogs and young puppies are the same size, but they're not appropriate players. So we would also look at the activity level, the play style of the dogs. Look at the size and also the dogs' personalities.

Q: My doggie day camp wants to do a temperament test before allowing my dog in? Is that necessary? A: It's for the safety of both the dogs and the people. It helps to determine if the daycare is right for you and the dog. Again, not all dogs are suitable for daycamp play. It's also used to match your dog's personality with appropriate playmates so your dog is placed in the correct playgroup.

Q: Are there some breeds that shouldn't be allowed in day camp? A: You really need to look at the dogs as individuals, not as breeds. We test all day camp dogs with an evaluation for temperament and behavior issues. Any dog, regardless of breed, will not be allowed at day camp if they do not pass our evaluation. If the dog has small issues we offer training during day camp.

Q: What kind of training should the staff of a doggie daycare have? A: Doggie Day Camp is supervised by a "dog savvy trainer along with qualified staff who have been trained in reading canine body language, signs of stress and basic animal care. Almost nothing a dog does is incidental or accidental. There's a lot being said by dogs and we don't see it, even in their overt behaviors.

Dog behavior or communication is complex in itself and then you throw the dynamics of a group in there and it makes it even more complex. People can learn so much just by watching dogs interact.

Q: Should all dogs in day camp have their shots? A: Yes, it is a requirement. Proof of up to date vaccinations are required prior to any dog participating in daycare.

Q: Do I get a discount on a dog wash if my dog is in day camp or obedience training? A: Yes. We can wash your dog while they are in daycamp and send them home smelling great. Discounted pricing is $10 (small dogs), $15 (medium size) and $20 (large dogs).
